Dear Mr. Weisberg:

Thank you for your special interest in Part II of LIFE's series, "The Romans" in our March 11 issue which prompted your comments.

The fanciful drawings by Arno of Roman history do indeed include a group of sacred geese who saved the citadel, but nonetheless represent ducks in his interpretation of their features. We appreciate having your information on the history and appearance of this breed of rare geese. Our apologies for the foul play.

I regret that our present crowded publishing schedule prevents us from focusing on your Canada wild geese and the "Geese for Peace" project, but we nonetheless appreciate your thought in writing.

With best wishes.

Sincerely yours,

Anne Humphrey
